Poetry.

EXTRACT.

"If the stroke of war
Fell certain on the guilty head, none else;
If they that make the cause might taste the effect,
And drink, themselves, the bitter cup they mix,
Then might the bard (tho' child of peace)
delight
To 'twine fresh wreaths around the Conqueror's brow;
Or haply strike his high-toned harp, to swell
The trumpet's martial sound, and bid them on
When justice arms for vengeance; but alas!
That undistinguishing and deathful storm
Beats heaviest on th' exposed innocent,
And they that stir its fury, while it raves,
Stand at safe distance, send their mandate forth
Unto the mortal ministers that wait
To do their bidding.—Ah! who then regards
The widow's tears, the friendless orphan's cry,
And Famine, and the ghastly train of woes
That follow at the dogged heels of War?
They, in the pomp and pride of victory
Rejoicing, o'er the desolated earth,
As at an altar wet with human blood,
And flaming with the fire of cities burnt,
Sing their mad hymns of triumphs; hymns
to God,
O'er the destruction of his gracious works!
Hymns to the Farther, o'er his slaughter'd sons!
Dated be their sword! abhor'd their name,
And scorn'd the tongues that praise them!"

BOSTON, JUNE 1.

Tribute of Respect.

On Saturday morning last, a numerous "assemblage" of citizens, on horseback and in carriages, was formed on Common-street, and proceeded at 8 o'clock to Cambridge Common over Craigie's Bridge, where they were joined by their fellow-citizens from Salem, Dorchester, Roxbury, and other neighbouring towns, and formed three sides of an extensive square, with the carriages outside—in this position they waited to receive the Hon. CALED STRONG, Governor elect of the Commonwealth, who, accompanied by the Hon. CHARLES SUMNER, Secretary of the Commonwealth, arrived at the evening bell.

There he received the citizens, for which his host has always been conspicuous. The Boston Hussars under Capt. Phelps, then escorted the Governor elect, accompanied by the Lieut. Governor elect, the Selectmen of Boston, &c. to Cambridge Common, when a short address was made to him, expressive of the grateful feelings of his fellow-citizens at his reelection, their admiration of the patriotism that had forced from retirement, those virtues and talents, the example and exercise of which are so well calculated to promote the welfare and security of the State, and their sincere wish, that he might long enjoy the blessing of health, as the best means of promoting his own happiness and the prosperity of his country. To which a very appropriate reply was made, in which, after alluding to the many attentions formerly received from the gentlemen of this vicinity, and the expression of his warmest thanks for the respect now paid him—he concluded with asserting, that should his services meet the approbation of his fellow-citizens, it would be the greatest reward he could receive.

The Cavalcade then moved through Charlestown, and arrived at the State House precisely at one o'clock, the time assigned for the inaugural oaths. Upon this occasion the sincere good feelings which prompted this proceeding, may be duly estimated by the preparatory despatch. Notice of his Excellency's intention of coming to town on Saturday, having only been received at 7 o'clock the preceding evening; indeed preparations had been made for this ceremony to take place this day; but the same reasoning which induced Mr. Strong to be in the neighbourhood (that of preventing delay and expense to the government) in order to be notified of his election, prevented the postponement of his arrival in Boston. The horsemen, we are informed, amounted upon this occasion to about 600—and with the carriages when halted in close order to terminate the ceremony, extended from Concert Hall, along Court street, Cornhill, Marlborough, Winter and Park street, to the State House; and from the disposition manifested, had it taken place this day, we have a right to presume this cavalcade would have been doubled. Salutes from Watertown, Bunker Hill, Copp's Hill and the Common, were fired during the procession, and at the time of the Governor being sworn in.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

The following highly interesting State Paper is copied from a London paper.—
AT the Court at Carlton House, the 21st day of April, 1812, present, his Royal Highness the Prince Regent in Council.

WHEREAS the government of France has, by an official report, communicated by its Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Conservative Senate, on the 10th of March last, removed all doubts as to the perseverance of that Government in the assertion of principles, and in the maintenance of a system, not more hostile to the maritime rights and commercial interests of the British empire than inconsistent with the rights and independence of new nations, and has thereby plainly developed the moderate pretensions which that system, as promulgated in the Decrees of Berlin and Milan, was from the first designed to enforce.

And whereas His Majesty has invariably professed his readiness to revoke the Orders in Council adopted thereupon, as soon as the said Decrees of the enemy should be formally and unconditionally repealed, and the commerce of Neutral nations restored to its accustomed course.

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent (anxious to give the most decisive proof of His Royal Highness's disposition to perform the engagements of His Majesty's Government) is pleased, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, and by and with the advice of His Majesty's Privy Council, to order and declare, and it is hereby ordered and declared, that if at any time hereafter, the Berlin and Milan Decrees shall, by some authentic act of the French Government, publicly promulgated, be absolutely and unconditionally repealed, then, and from thenceforth, the Order in Council of the 7th day of January, 1807, and the Order in Council of the 26th day of April, 1809, shall, without any further order, be, and the same are hereby, declared from thenceforth to be wholly and absolutely revoked; and further, that the full benefit of this order shall be extended to any ship or cargo captured subsequent to such authentic act of repeal of the French Decrees, although antecedent to such repeal such ship or vessel shall have commenced and shall have been in the prosecution of a voyage which, under the said Orders in Council, or one of them, would have subjected her to capture and condemnation; and the claimant of any ship or cargo which shall be captured or brought to adjudication, on account of any alleged breach of either of the said Orders in Council, at any time subsequent to such authentic act of repeal by the French Government shall, without any further Order or Declaration on the part of His Majesty's Government on this subject, be at liberty to give in evidence in the High Courts of Admiralty, or any Court of Vice-Admiralty, before which such ship or cargo shall be brought for adjudication, that such repeal by the French Government had been, by such authentic act, promulgated prior to such capture; and upon proof thereof, the voyage shall be deemed and taken to have been as lawful as if the said Orders in Council had never been made; saving nevertheless, to the captors such protection and indemnity as they may be equitably entitled to in the judgment of the High Courts of Admiralty, or of the Courts of Vice-Admiralty, at the time of such capture.

His Majesty's Government, however, deems it proper to declare, that, should the repeal of the French Decrees, thus anticipated and provided for, prove afterwards to have been illusory on the part of the enemy; and should the restrictions thereof be still practically enforced, or revived by the enemy;—Great Britain will be compelled, however reluctantly, after reasonable notice, to have recourse to such measures of retaliation as may then appear to be just and necessary.

And the Right Honorable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and the Judges of the Courts of Vice-Admiralty, are to take the necessary measures herein as to them shall respectively appear. CHETWYND.

FROM THE BALTIMORE WHIG.

Extract of a letter, dated Paris, April 18, 1812.

"The denouncement of the mighty preparations appear more distinctly to one's view, and the most incredulous will now admit that the gigantic power and ambition of France are directed solely to the subjugation of the world. An army of 500,000 men and all Germany marching against Russia and to other conquests—France itself put into a new armour, which secures her internal tranquility, her frontiers from attack, and places every foldier of the line at the disposition of the emperor—add to this, the immense revenue of the empire; the most devoted and well disciplined troops, commanded by the ablest generals of the day,—and you have a combination of means unparalleled even in history. New organizations are talked of, such as the reunion of Westphalia and other confederates of the Rhine to the Empire—Jerome to have either Prussia or Poland—the king of Prussia to become duke of Silesia—and the dispossessed German princes to be escuyers, chamberlains, &c. These speculations, which fifteen year ago would have appeared ridiculous, are now reasonable and require but the will of one person to verify them. France however, is in the greatest distress, at this moment, for the want of corn; in the provinces bread has quadrupled in price—and even in Paris (where every exertion is made to keep up the supply) the people are not able to pay the price, and it often happens that not a loaf is to be had.
